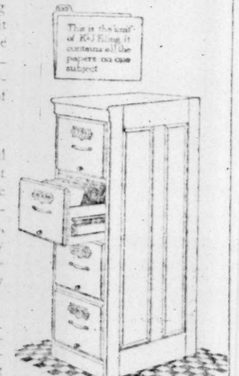
K & J Vertical Filing

SYSTEM, especially office system, means a great deal more than mere tidiness. For example, it means the filing of letters and documents in classified order, the keeping of papers in their proper places. A real filing system almost automatically will produce at a moment's notice all documents relating to a given subject—it leaves no doubt where they are to be found—it preserves the connection between one set of papers and another.

The K. & J. Vertical Filing System is just such a system—Simple in the extreme—adaptable to varying needs, self-indexing, easily classified, gives instantaneous reference to any papers.

A visit to any K & J Showroom will reveal the possibilities of Vertical Filing. Such a visit cannot fail to be interesting and profitable to those aiming at the perfection of their office organisation.



K. & J. VERTICAL FILE.

This is the kind of K&J Filing it contains all the papers on one subject

Showing Papers Filed in Vertical Position. Showing Separation from one Subject to another. Showing Guide Cards and Papers filed behind. Showing Economy of Indexing. Promotes Efficiency.

BOXING.

Finals at Royal Hibernian Military School.

The finals of the annual boxing tournament, which had been in progress for the last two months, were decided last night in the Gymnasium of the Royal Hibernian Military School, Phœnix Park. There was a large attendance, and amongst those present were—Lieut.-General the Right Hon. Sir F. C. Shaw, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief; Major J. R. Bury-Barry, A.D.C., Brig.-General A. W. Pagan, D.S.O., Colonel W. Edgeworth-Johnstone, C.B., Chief Commissioner D.M.P.; Colonel Kirkby, Colonel Hon. Lord Cloncurry, Colonel F. Findlay, the Right Hon. the Master of the Rolls; Captain the Hon. H. R. C. Twistleton-Wykeham-Fiennes, Colonel McDonnell, C.B., Commandant R.H.M.S.; F. P. Gilpin, J. Mooney, S. Murdock, etc.

In the preliminary competitions 345 of the 410 boys in the School took part, and in all there were 525 contests before the finals were reached.

The boxing last night was, as usual, of an exceptionally high standard, the boys displaying a knowledge of the art which reflected much credit on themselves and their instructors.

On the conclusion of the contests, Colonel McDonnell (Commandant of the School) announced that he had received a letter of apology from His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, who regretted that he was unable to attend. His Excellency he said, took a deep interest in the School. None of them were ever likely to forget that it was Viscount French and his little Army who held up millions of Germans in that first rush by which they endeavoured to overwhelm the British, and leave them helpless for the rest of the war. The Lord Lieutenant had told them in his despatches that to attribute our success to the fighting qualities of the British, Irish, and Dominion troops under his command qualities which they in that School were endeavouring to develop amongst the boys. There was, however, very little difficulty in developing them because the boys were all sons of soldiers, and they had inherited from their fathers the fighting instincts of the race. He was very pleased to tell them that, in addition to the cups and other prizes, they had received a special prize—a beautiful pocket knife—from Lieut.-General Sir F. C. Shaw, and it would be awarded to the winner of the middle-weight competition. (Applause.)

Colonel Edgeworth-Johnstone (who acted as referee) said that he always looked forward with the greatest pleasure to the competitions at the School, and had always been very favourably impressed with the quality of the boxing, and the arrangements generally. They had come through a desperate war, and came through it as victors. (Applause)—and he could not help thinking that little success as a nation was largely due to the devotion of all Britishers to manly sports and pastimes. In his opinion, no particular form of sport was of more use in developing the physique of the soldier than boxing. (Hear, hear.) He congratulated those who were responsible for the training of the boys, who had given them such excellent form that night.

The band of the School, under the conductorship of Mr. Rich, played a choice selection at intervals.

RUGBY.

Practice Games Abandoned.—The attempt by Wanderers and Academicals to make a start at Lansdowne road yesterday proved a failure. Only a few members turned out, and the idea of holding a practice game had to be abandoned. It is hoped that if it will take some time to bring the game back to its pre-war status, for practically all the players of 1913-14 are with the colours, and a few of them, unfortunately, have made the great sacrifice, and the clubs will have to depend largely upon new members recruited from the schools. It is expected that many military players will join the practice games next week.

ASSOCIATION.

Irish Intermediate Cup.—At a meeting of the I.F.A. Junior Committee, held in Belfast last night, the draw for the third round of the Irish Junior Cup resulted as follows:—Dublin Dodder-Riverside v. St. James's Gate; H. C. Great Southern and Western Railway v. W. and R. Jacob's. To be played on December 7th, the first-named club in each case to have choice of ground.

BILLIARDS.

Amateur Tournament.—The amateur billiards match at Thurston's Hall, Leicester square, London, was continued yesterday afternoon when Mr. Midland champion, E. W. Foster, defeated E. H. Hindle. The total was one of 5,000 up and, after a ding-dong finish, Foster won by 500 to 467 at the evening session. S. H. Fry opposed A. E. Graham. The ex-amateur champion made breaks of 72, 58, 40, and 87 (unfinished), beating Graham by 156. The latter's best efforts were 107, 47, and 54.

Newman v. Smith.—Closing scores:—Newman, 4,000; Smith, 2,854.

Carpenter v. Inman.—Closing scores:—Carpenter (rec. 3,000), 3,851; Inman (to score), 4,082.

SUCCESSFUL DEMONSTRATION OF TRACTOR PLOUGHING.

A large number of practical farmers gathered at Portmanna, Clonee, Co. Meath, on Wednesday last, and were entertained by Mr. Patrick Moore. His 20 h.p. "Titan" tractor, hauling a "Roberts" three-furrow plough, was at work on a field adjoining the farm buildings. The ploughing was excellent, and all expressed pleasure and surprise at the splendidly even quality of the work done. The furrow measured 10in. wide x 7½in. to 8in. in depth, and was well turned. One point which caused considerable comment of a favourable nature was the extremely neat headland, the plough being taken from the furrow and re-entered exactly on a previously prepared mark. No horses were used. During the evening the I.H.C. tandem disc harrow was used, drawn by the tractor over the fresh-ploughed ground. The agents are Messrs. Ashenhurst, Williams, and Co., Ltd., of 15 Talbot place and 158 Lower Baggot street, Dublin.

CAUSES AND CURE OF ALCOHOLISM.

Lord Askbeaton, Chairman of the Liquor Control Board, read a paper last night on the rival theories of the cause of drunkenness at a meeting of the Aristocratic Club, London. Lord Askbeaton said that excessive drinking was mainly due to bad general environment or to morbid predisposition on the part of the drinker. Remedies were determined accordingly. The environment school believed in legislation. The temperamental school turned for a solution to inclusive hotels and punishment by fine or imprisonment. The advocates of the latter method received by the hand of both views, but much more by the temperament. Pre-war figures showed that the measure applied under the temperamental theory left the problem unsolved. On the other hand statistical data warranted the proposition that the methods directed to the environment factor would go a long way towards the solution of the social problem of alcoholism. The conference would justify itself by definitely looking forward to the practical abolition of drunkenness without increased severity towards individual drinkers. It would postulate the view that men and women mainly led into drunkenness in the absence of reasonable facilities and necessary guidance and guidance as to how it could be avoided. Those who had striven for improvement might now expect that reduction was more nearly within reach than at any previous period.

ALLEGED BOGUS STAFF OFFICER.

SCENE IN DUBLIN POLICE COURT

PRISONER AND MAGISTRATE.

In the Northern Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Lupton, John McDonnell, described as a warrior from the London-Scottish Rifles, was brought up in custody on remand, charged by Detective Sergeant O'Mahony and Detective Officer Redmond with having obtained £200 by false pretences from the manager of the Drumcondra Branch of the National Bank on the 9th November. The prisoner had been arrested at a Cork hotel, where, it is alleged, he was posing as a Staff Captain attached to the Irish Command. He is alleged to have travelled in the South of Ireland by motor car, and to have represented himself as a bearer of despatches. The prisoner was last before the Court a long, signed statement was read from the prisoner, in which he gave a remarkable account of his adventures after the alleged offence at Drumcondra.

Mr. J. W. Travis prosecuted.

The prisoner, who was not professionally represented, appeared in the dock in civilian attire.

John McInerney, Swords, said that he happened to be in the Northern Bank at Swords on November 9th, and met the prisoner there. The prisoner was in conversation with the bank manager. Prisoner turned to witness and said "I am a son of McKenna's, of Malahide. My father is anxious to buy some cattle, and in my hurry out I forgot my cheque book." Witness replied: "I can oblige you with a blank cheque if that is of any use to you." Prisoner thanked witness, and said he would be very much obliged. Witness then gave him two blank cheques, and prisoner wrote on the cheque form. "Borrowed, 6-11-18," and signed the name "P. McKenna," after which he went out and got a pen from witness and put it on the cheque. Prisoner then left, and witness did not see him afterwards.

Prisoner at first declined to cross-examine the witness, but then asked if the witness was sure that he (prisoner) was the man he lent the cheques to, and witness replied in the affirmative.

Mr. Lupton (to witness)—The prisoner wants to have himself identified.

Mr. C. H. Sims, Northern Banking Co., Sackville street, Dublin, stated that at 11 a.m. on the 9th inst. he opened a branch office of the bank at Swords. There were a number of customers whom witness knew waiting for the bank to open. He saw the prisoner there, and did not attend to him until last, as he did not know him as a customer.

Mr. Davis asked whether the last witness (McInerney) was present in the bank at the time, and witness replied in the affirmative.

Prisoner at this point suddenly became much excited, and, addressing the magistrate, charged him with insulting him. He (prisoner) would send a complaint to Dublin Castle.

Mr. Lupton said that the prisoner would have to control himself in the court, otherwise he would commit him to prison for contempt.

Prisoner—You can put me to jail for contempt of Court if you like, but you cannot treat me as guilty until I have been found guilty. You have insulted me and now you can commit me to prison if you like.

Mr. Lupton—I give you seven days for contempt of Court.

Prisoner was then removed from the dock, but a few minutes later was brought back to Court, and Mr. Lupton, addressing him, said that he wished him to hear an statement that was being made in the deposition of Mr. Sims.

Prisoner—You have given me seven days for contempt of Court. I am not satisfied with your treatment of me. You have treated me unfairly from the beginning. I am a magistrate, and you send other lads to prison. Irish born—and I am not afraid of you.

Mr. Lupton (to the police)—Remove that man now. I do not be allowing him to talk there. A man is only entitled to hear the evidence as long as he conducts himself in the dock, but that man is not conducting himself. Remove him.

Prisoner was again removed by the police from the dock, still excitedly protesting that the magistrate had insulted him, and treated him unfairly.

FOOD FROM THE SEA.

Yesterday afternoon, in the theatre of the Royal Dublin Society, a meeting of persons interested in the sea was delivered in Professor Green, under the auspices of the Royal Zoological Society of Ireland. Sir Frederick Moore, President of the Society, who presided, introduced the lecturer as the greatest son of an eminent father, and an authority on deep sea fishing. Standing by the Biological Gardens, the Chairman said they had passed through times of the greatest trial during the past four years. Everything was against them. That was a disgrace. Fishing was stopped, wages were higher, and food materials were badly shared and badly supplied. Appeals were being made to help the Gardens, and a fete was being organised for June next. Over £4,000 was required.

Professor Green, whose lecture was illustrated by striking lantern slides, said that the food of adult fishes consisted of crustaceans, shell fish of many kinds, and fish and other fishes. He described how resort had recently been circulated that fish from deep sea were poisonous. That was a disgusting and a false report. It was untrue that any fishes, except some tropical sharks, fed on carrion or on anything except clean and wholesome food. (Applause.) A nutritious fish such as a herring contained vitamines, which were not to be found in such a luxury as a rabbit. The total quantity of fish landed in the United Kingdom in 1913—the latest normal year—was upwards of 1,200,000 tons—a quantity sufficient to provide every family in the Kingdom with about 20 cwt. of fish for the year. A vote of thanks was passed to the lecturer.

Most foreigners are commonplace: The King of all the liquid race is WELCO Cocoa! (Advt.)

Notifiable Diseases.—At the North Dublin Rural District Council yesterday a letter was read from the Local Government Board relating to the resolution received from the Council, in which it had suggested that influenza be made a notifiable disease. The Local Government Board stated they were not satisfied that this would be of much value in checking the spread of the disease. They stated, however, that septic pneumonia might, with advantage, be added to the list of notifiable diseases. The Council decided to amend their resolution in accordance with the Local Government Board's suggestion.

Dublin Citizens' Association.—At this week's meeting of the Dublin Citizens' Association presided over by Mr. J. J. Orr, Chairman) it was decided to circularise all the members of the Corporation to oppose, next Monday, in the interests of the ratepayers, and in the absence of very special circumstances relating to any individual case, applications from certain officials of the Corporation for permanent increases in their salaries. The Secretary was also directed to write to the Board of the Richmond Asylum protesting against the payment of increased increases of salaries sanctioned for in the estimates by leaving other debts unpaid.

Rathmines Parish.—The annual missionary sale of work in connection with Rathmines parish was commenced yesterday in the parochial hall, Leinster square, and will be continued to-day. Flags and floral decorations made the hall look bright and inviting, and the numerous stalls were tastefully arranged. Half-hour concerts and other forms of entertainments were provided. Last year the sale secured more than £200, a record, which it is hoped to pass this year. The sale was opened by Sir George Bassett, K.C., LL.D., in the absence of Lady Fitzgerald Arnott, who sent a letter expressing the wish that the efforts of the stallholders on behalf of so large a cause would meet with the best success.

Dublin's Absent Continental Steamers.—Inquiries made again yesterday regarding the probable return to Dublin of the interned steamers and vessels of the Continental vessels belonging to Messrs. Palgrave, Murphy, and Co., Ltd., Eden quay, showed that no definite information had so far been received. A telegram had, it appeared, been received by the relatives of some of these steamers' captains indicating that he hoped to reach Dublin again about next Saturday. This message came from Copenhagen, and as the port here was taken to suggest large numbers of new members recruited from the schools. It is expected that many military players will join the practice games next week.

ASSOCIATION.

Irish Intermediate Cup.—At a meeting of the I.F.A. Junior Committee, held in Belfast last night, the draw for the third round of the Irish Junior Cup resulted as follows:—Dublin Dodder-Riverside v. St. James's Gate; H. C. Great Southern and Western Railway v. W. and R. Jacob's. To be played on December 7th, the first-named club in each case to have choice of ground.

BILLIARDS.

Amateur Tournament.—The amateur billiards match at Thurston's Hall, Leicester square, London, was continued yesterday afternoon when Midland champion, E. W. Foster, defeated E. H. Hindle. The total was one of 5,000 up and, after a ding-dong finish, Foster won by 500 to 467 at the evening session. S. H. Fry opposed A. E. Graham. The ex-amateur champion made breaks of 72, 58, 40, and 87 (unfinished), beating Graham by 156. The latter's best efforts were 107, 47, and 54.

Newman v. Smith.—Closing scores:—Newman, 4,000; Smith, 2,854.

Carpenter v. Inman.—Closing scores:—Carpenter (rec. 3,000), 3,851; Inman (to score), 4,082.

ELECTION ADDRESSES.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF DUBLIN.
I appeal again for your suffrages. Trinity College has contributed nobly to the Forces that have conquered in the great war, and brought peace with power. With peace a new era begins, and urgent problems are waiting for solution.
The policy of the Coalition Ministry for dealing with some of those problems has been outlined by its leaders, and upon those lines I ask for your support. I ask you also to testify your confidence that the Government under which the war has been brought to so glorious a termination can best, too, be authorised to frame adequate terms of peace.
I have always been, and am, a convinced Unionist. The Prime Minister, in his letter to Mr. Bonar Law, has declared that any attempt to bring the Home Rule Act into effect while excluding the six counties of Ulster could not, in the present condition of Ireland, succeed, and that it must be postponed until the state of Ireland makes it possible. North-East Ulster must not and cannot be coerced. On the other hand, I am convinced that any constitutional arrangement based upon proposals for partition would be rejected by the rest of Ireland and cannot be carried.
As Trinity College has devoted of her best to the war, so, too, she will doubtless contribute of her best in thought and science and achievement to the great Imperial and national tasks of peace.
For the honour of being one of the representatives of so illustrious a University during the momentous period through which we have passed I cannot thank you sufficiently. Will you continue that trust, and permit me again to serve you in Parliament, while you address yourselves to help it to build up the fabric of a new economy?
Faithfully yours,
ARTHUR WARREN SAMUELS, Ex-Sch., K.C., M.P.
Committee Rooms, 9 Trinity College, Dublin.
Polling Day, Wednesday, 4th December, 1918.
James S. Bernard, M.A., Election Agent for the Right Hon. Arthur W. Samuels, K.C., M.P., Attorney-General for Ireland.

TO THE ELECTORS OF ST. STEPHEN'S GREEN DIVISION.
LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,
I have much pleasure in asking your votes as Unionist Candidate for the Parliamentary Division of St. Stephen's Green, I shall, if elected, place clearly before you the views which I am prepared to support.
On the question of Home Rule, I hold that the true interests of this country can best be served by a steadfast maintenance for the whole of Ireland of the Act of Union. It is the only system of government which, under present conditions, can give us, as it has always given us when rightly administered, security to all forms of property, protection for law-abiding subjects, and prosperity and honour for those engaged in every occupation or employed in industrial and agricultural enterprise.
I am opposed to the policy of Partition, which would be disastrous to the interests of Southern Unionists.
The crying need of Dublin is the settlement of the Housing Question.
I shall advocate that the proposed National Schemes for the Model Housing of the Working Classes be extended to the overcrowded areas of this city. The establishment of a Ministry of Health will also have my attention.
On the Temperance question, I am strongly in favour of all progressive measures which can justly be taken for reducing the evils of the drink traffic.
I shall support all measures for the advancement of the Rights of Women in social and industrial reform.
I shall support the Coalition Government in their Reconstruction policy, as it is dealing with it with an ample and speedy provision for returned soldiers and sailors, the establishment of a just Peace, Education and Social Reform.
I shall also favour the purification of political life, for the making of a new Parliament for a new era, and that nationalism may not be exploited to promote the selfish interests of any section of the community.
Your obedient servant,
HENRY HANNA.

IN
THE RECONSTRUCTION POLICY
A Meeting of Women Voters and Workers will be held (by kind permission of the Lord Mayor) in the Oak Room, MANSION HOUSE, on SATURDAY, the 30th inst., at 8 o'clock p.m.
All Women Voters and Workers in this Division are cordially invited to attend.
MR. HANNA, K.C., the Unionist Candidate for this Division, and prominent WOMEN SPEAKERS will address the Meeting.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE RATHMINES AND RATHGAR DIVISION OF THE COUNTY OF DUBLIN.
LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,
At the request of the Rathmines National Registration Committee I have pleasure in declaring a candidature for the representation of our Parliamentary Division, and I therefore, therefore, respectfully solicit your votes, support, and influence.
I come forward as a resident of the district, one familiar with its peculiar needs and interests, and one intimately acquainted with many of them personally as the free and spontaneous choice of the local Nationalist party for years has worked for National and progressive ideas in the district.
I solicit the support of every supporter of what is termed "Full Demand" as formulated by Sinn Fein Ireland. The present system of government is abnormal. The people are governed by the will of one country until her legitimate national aspirations are satisfied. This has been admitted and declared nations who were fighting for freedom.
The Irish people, by the Irish People, settling complete separation from England and Scotland, thus implying—
(a) Enormous taxation on this country.
(b) The closing of English and Scottish markets to Irish goods.
(c) The end of Land Purchase.
(d) The withdrawal of British rule from Ireland.
(e) The Party who during the major part of the greatest struggle in history maintained an attitude of indifference, if not of hostility, to the cause of the Allied nations—the cause of liberty and freedom.
(f) The Party which, when Conscription was declared, sat silent in the House of Commons, while the Ambassador placed the Seal on the Victory of the Allied Arms, and the Triumph of Liberty throughout all of our countrymen.
(g) The Party some of whose members are now canvassing for the Unionist Vote, but who as a Party never did anything for Unionists, save to threaten them.
(h) The Party whose contribution towards assisting in the winning of the War was a Parliamentary petition was 0.
(i) Unionists. If you vote for the Nationalist you vote for the party whose Party was declared by Sir John Dillon, M.P., in the House of Commons on the 7th of November, 1918, to be as follows—
As regards the demand of Ireland we do not differ. Our demand is limited and never have differed from the demand made by the present Sinn Fein Party. The Party of Nationalist resolutionary warfare in the land."

The Irish Elections.

The lists are now set for the Irish elections, and some salient facts emerge from the great mass of speeches and reports. The chief fact is that the Nationalist Parliamentary Party is marching to its Waterloo. Whether the disaster is to befall at the polls has been made certain before the opening of a single ballot-box. Thirty of the late members of the Nationalist Party have retired voluntarily or by compulsion, and there are thirty seats—including all the seven seats in County Clare—for which, up to the present, the Party has nominated no candidates. Its appeal for funds has met with a very meagre response. Sinn Fein, on the other hand, is full of confidence and seems to be full of money. It will contest 99 of the 105 seats in Ireland. Mr. de Valera has been nominated for not less than four seats, and, if he goes to the poll for all of them, will sacrifice at least £450 under the Representation of the People Act. He will oppose Mr. Dillon in East Mayo, and Mr. Devlin in Belfast. Mr. Devlin strikingly entrenched in the Falls Division: it is quite probable that he is the only important member of his party who will return to Westminster after the General Election. The most favourable estimates give the party not more than twenty-five seats in the new House of Commons. Sinn Fein expects to win sixty seats, and will then proceed to enforce its policy of abstention. From that hour, of course, its real difficulties will begin. It will be compelled to substitute some sort of policy for its present orgy of mere emotion, and from the first day the new scheme of abstention will take heavy toll of Ireland's agricultural and commercial prosperity. We may believe that Sinn Fein stands at this moment at its high-water mark of success. The Roman Catholic bishops clearly begin to be afraid of the monster which they helped to create when they blessed the anti-conscription campaign. Eight of them now propose a compromise, with the declared object of keeping Nationalist seats in Ulster which will be lost if Dillonite and Sinn Fein candidates split the Nationalist vote. Their chief object, we may suspect, is a desire to save the Parliamentary Party from complete destruction. They have every cause for contemplating the immediate future with grave concern.

Mr. Dillon may swallow his pride, and accept the compromise in the case of the threatened seats in Ulster, but it is not likely to be extended to three-cornered contests south of the Boyne. His acceptance of a general compromise would be a terribly humiliating admission of his party's utter impotence. At present the prospects of the five Unionist candidates in the City and County of Dublin are cheerful and, in some cases, excellent. There is a welcome similarity between their several election addresses. All are strong supporters of the Act of Union, and all are resolved, if elected, to insist that the full benefits of the Coalition's great policy of reconstruction shall be applied to Ireland. As successful men of affairs they will be able, as well as willing, to fulfil their promises. We are especially glad that these candidates are unanimous in repudiating one aspect of the Coalition's policy: they will have nothing to say to its fatal plans for the partition of their country. Sir Maurice Dockrell and Sir Thomas Robinson declare themselves equally hostile to coercion and to partition. They and the Unionist electors must remember that, of the two, partition is by far the more serious danger. The Coalition is pledged—as British Governments must be pledged for ever—against the coercion of Ulster. On the other hand, it is committed definitely to the partition of Ireland, and the Ulster Unionists themselves are preparing to make partition effective even before it is ratified by Act of Parliament. Mr. Hanna, K.C., is an Ulsterman, but his knowledge of southern affairs has convinced him that partition would be disastrous to all Southern Unionists. The same conviction is held by all four candidates in the singularly interesting contest for Dublin University. Sir Robert Woods, a moderate Unionist, declares emphatically that partition would be "the worst form of separation." Mr. Jellett, K.C., an uncompromising Unionist, and Captain Guynn, an Imperial Nationalist, reject it. Mr. Arthur Samuels, K.C., disagreeing with the Government on which he is a member, is satisfied that "any constitutional arrangement based upon proposals for partition rejected by the rest of Ireland cannot effect a settlement." Whatever the result of the election may be, the verdict of Dublin University on the ruinous policy of partition will be in no doubt.

We need not urge upon the Unionist electors, male and female, in the five Dublin divisions the duty of sparing no effort to secure the return of their candidates. At a time when we are threatened with sedition on one side and with partition on the other it is of the first importance that the voice of Southern Unionism shall be heard in the Imperial Parliament. If Southern Unionists are to be betrayed, the House of Commons must be deprived at least of the excuse of ignorance of the inevitable results. For those results every Unionist elector in the five divisions who abstains from supporting the Unionist candidate will bear a measure of responsibility. We have received many requests for advice concerning the duty of Unionist electors in those constituencies—the vast majority in the South and West—where only Nationalist and Sinn Fein candidates are in the field. We cannot suppose for an instant that any Irish Unionist will support, in any circumstances, a member of the party which abjures loyalty to the throne and person of the King, and has never disowned its "gallant allies in Europe." The case for Official Nationalism is more difficult, and we are not disposed to suggest any general rule. We think, however, that the claim of any constitutional Nationalist to the votes of Unionist electors should be decided by that particular candidate's attitude to the war. The Nationalist Party, as a whole, did nothing to win the war after Mr. Redmond's death, but some of its members, in their own persons or in those of their sons, have given with the utmost devotion to the Allied cause. Such men deserve something more than disrespect of Irish Unionists. For instance, we hope that every Unionist elector in the City of Waterford will record his vote in favour of that gallant soldier, Captain William Redmond, D.S.O. On the other hand, we hope that no Unionist elector will vote for any candidate who has refused deliberately to help the recruiting campaign. Such men did not cut a large majority of the Nationalist Party. It is not we or the Unionist electors of Southern Ireland who are to blame.

Germany's Latest Appeal.

In her efforts to secure a mitigation of the terms of armistice Germany has exhausted all the efforts of official diplomacy without avail. She now invokes the ideal of Christian unity. The employment of this weapon has been entrusted to Professor Deissmann, who for the past ten years has occupied the position of Professor of New Testament Exegesis in the University of Berlin, and was before the war a theologian of repute in Great Britain. Professor Deissmann has addressed himself to the Archbishop of Canterbury through the intermediary of Archbishop Soderblom, of Upsala, who has forwarded his communication to the Archbishop of Canterbury without comment. The Archbishop of Canterbury throughout the war has consistently remembered his responsibility as the head of the Anglican Communion, and has scrupulously avoided any appearance of a Jingoism inconsistent with his position. If Professor Deissmann imagined, however, that this attitude was inspired by a sentimental "pacificism," he has had a salutary awakening. The Archbishop of Canterbury, in his reply, politely, but firmly, refuses to accept as correct the view of the European situation upon which he bases his plea for a mitigation of the armistice terms—the view that, in Professor Deissmann's words, "all that is needed on the part of Christian civilisation in the belligerent countries is "mutual forgiveness and conciliation in order to fight in unison against the terrible consequences of the war and to serve the moral improvement of the nations and of mankind." The Archbishop points out that this form of statement ignores both the historic origin of the war and the manner in which Germany has conducted it. On the former head he might have quoted the damning testimony just published by the new Bavarian Government, which provides absolute documentary proof from the enemy's own side that the crime in the history of the world was ever prepared in a more cold-blooded, deliberate manner. "We cannot forget," says the Archbishop, "the terrible crime wrought against humanity and civilisation when this terrible war was let loose in Europe. Nor can we possibly ignore the savagery which the German high command has displayed in carrying on the war." All these things compel the Allies to take security against the repetition of such a crime. The Archbishop regards the preliminary guarantees embodied in the armistice terms as no more than what is adequate and just. He remarks upon the absence in Christian circles in Germany of "any public protest against these gross wrongs, or any repudiation of their perpetrators." Germany's repentance of them may be sincere; but Christian opinion in the Allied countries would be more ready to believe it if such men as Professor Deissmann first recognised that, in the Archbishop's words, "righteousness must be vindicated, even though the vindication involves sternness."

Channel Ferries.

The creation of the port of Richborough on the coast of Kent is one of the romances of the war. In the brief space of a few months a desolate expanse of salt marshes, through which the River Stour wound its way tortuously towards the sea, was converted into one of the most important bases from which war material and food are despatched to our vast Armies in France. The place was constructed entirely by military labour. At present it is used exclusively for military purposes, but with the return of peace its commercial possibilities cannot be left out of consideration. It is bound to play an important part in the industrial developments which are contemplated in Kent. Richborough was primarily intended as a harbour from which a cross-Channel barge service could be worked. When the tonnage question became acute, and the French ports were congested with war traffic, it became necessary to devise some alternative means of transport. Accordingly the cross-Channel barge service was instituted. A large number of 200-ton barges was constructed, and these were towed across the Channel, and taken via the splendid French canal system to depots established in close proximity to the firing line. From December,

THE NEW DIPLOMACY.

There can be little doubt, says The Times, that the German diplomatist is pulling itself together for one last effort to change the whole political situation before Germany goes into the Peace Conference. The idea is to make the continuation of the blockade a test question, and whether, by an immediate diplomatic offensive aimed at the point of junction between the Allies and the United States, Germany can establish, as a matter of principle, her "equal rights."

ADJUSTING CANDIDATURES.

Through a maze of uncertainty, says The Times, Parliamentary Correspondent, the Coalition, the Labour Party, and the other political forces which are gradually coming to life, are endeavouring to thread their way. The Coalition seems to be still busy adjusting its candidatures. Although time is getting short, and only nineteen less than a week ahead, a complete list of Coalition candidates is not yet available. Some say, indeed, that, after the experience of the London list, it may never see the light. What is clear is that Coalition candidates in the country may have to be content with the formal letter in which Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Bonar Law have franked them from Downing street. The following is a copy of one such letter:—"We have much pleasure in recognising you as the Coalition candidate for ——. We have every hope that the electors will return you as their representative in Parliament, to support the Government in the great task which is now before us."

FURTHER FALLS IN MARK AND KRONEN.

For practically a fortnight after the signing of the armistice, little change, says The Post, was observable in the neutral valuation of German or Austrian currency, but this week there has been a further heavy fall. Quotations are still not available for all centres, but on Tuesday the Berne price in Swiss currency for bank-notes compared with that for sterling, made their value 38.80 to the pound, while at Stockholm the price in Swedish currency for kronen, compared with that for sterling, worked out at 22.60 kronen to the pound. In other words, the value of the German mark in Switzerland has now fallen to less than 6½d. instead of a shilling, and that of the Austrian krone to less than 3½d., instead of twopence.

HARVEST HOME.

The Times publishes to-day a poem by the Poet Laureate, addressed to the Americans on their Thanksgiving Day, celebrated in England on November 28th, of which the following are the opening and final stanzas:—

A toast for West and East,
Drink on this Thursday toast,
Last in November—
But not when Albion's lads
Across the sea join hands—
Drink and remember.

Nineteen-eighteen fulfilled
By the Everliving

The Pilgrim Fathers made
Harvest thanksgiving.

"The good God bless this day;
And we for evil and aye
Keep our love living.
Till all men 'neath heaven's dome
Sing freedom's harvest home,
In one thanksgiving."

SECOND LIEUTENANT H. J. M'BRIEN.

Second Lieutenant Hubert John McBrien, Royal Dublin Fusiliers, says The Times, was wounded in action on November 4th, and taken to a dressing station, where he was killed by a shell. Aged 19, he was the eldest son of Chief Inspector McBrien, of the Special Branch, New Scotland Yard, and was educated at Wimbledon College, Surrey, where he was very successful in all his examinations. He joined the Bedfordshire Regiment as a private this year, and shortly afterwards was recommended for a commission in the Colonel of the Regiment. After passing through the cadet school at Clermont, he was posted to the 2nd Royal Dublin Fusiliers, with which regiment he left for the front last October.

The Marquis of Londonderry, the Earl of Dunraven, Sir Thomas Stafford, and Mrs. and Miss Birchenshaw arrived at the Lodge this evening. Lady Loch had the honour of being invited to dine this evening with His Excellency the Lord-Lieutenant at the Viceregal Lodge.

CONFERENCE AT DUBLIN CASTLE.

The Lord Lieutenant, the Commander-in-Chief of the Forces, and the Chief Secretary and Under-Secretary had their usual conference at the Castle yesterday. The Chief Secretary will, according to present arrangements, return to London to-day.

NEW DEPUTY LIEUTENANT OF COUNTY DONEGAL.

The Earl of Arran, K.P., P.C., His Majesty's Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the County of Donegal, has, with the approval of the Lord Lieutenant, appointed Sir Newman Chambers to be a Deputy Lieutenant of the County of Donegal.

A telegram from Jassy to Paris says that the Roumanian Government has protested against the violation of the Armistice Treaty by the Germans. The enemy troops in their retirement are indulging in pillage of every kind, blowing up bridges, and carrying off furniture, and live-stock.

THE IRISH SOLICITOR-GENERALSHIP.

The King has approved that Mr. Denis Henry, K.C., should be appointed Solicitor-General for Ireland, in the room of Mr. Powell.

Mr. Henry, who is a Unionist, is seeking re-election for South Londonderry.

The action by Mr. Henshall, theatrical manager, who sought a divorce from his wife on the ground of misconduct with Lieutenant A. Wilkinson, was dismissed in London yesterday. Mr. Henshall was granted a judicial separation on charges of cruelty.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

"ABOLISH THE BLOCKADE."

From inbred arrogance, says The Times, or out of a stupid hope that they can "bluff" their adversaries, the Germans are assuming or affecting an attitude which wholly ignores the fundamental facts of the situation. They must remember that, as an army and as a people, they have been thoroughly and hopelessly defeated; that they have had to sue for an armistice and for peace, and that they must accept—and carry out—the terms dictated to them. The absurd story, which they are reported to have circulated semi-officially, that the Entente will probably consider the abolition of the blockade, "as the result of Mr. Wilson's initiative," may be due to either or both of these elements. It is, we need hardly say, utterly unfounded. The Allies have not the slightest intention of throwing aside their chief weapon for ensuring the signature of a just peace and the performance of its conditions, particularly in the present chaotic and uncertain state of German institutions and of German politics. An extract from the Cologne Gazette, which we published the other day, declares, on the authority of a specialist, that, "even after the armistice, there is an abundance of food in Germany for the feeding of the population" if the stock of cattle is reduced. It affirms that "there is absolutely no danger of a famine in Germany," and that the "mad" food prices may be expected to fall sharply. The demands, mixed with threats, of Dr. Solf and other sturdy beggars for an immediate modification of the armistice, because Germany is starving, and a starving Germany is a menace to civilisation, must be considered in the light of evidences such as this. We know the value which German statesmen attached to "just words" under the old Government. We may reasonably doubt whether it has changed under the new. Mr. Hoover has to feed other peoples besides the Germans, and, strange as it may sound to them, they have, to say the least, no claim to preference over others. Their statements require to be carefully examined and controlled. When the truth has been ascertained, the Allies and America will allow them, from time to time during the negotiations, such supplies of food as humanity may dictate, and as the wants of other peoples may justify. But the blockade will have to remain in force until the definitive peace has been ratified. After that it may be kept in abeyance as the chosen instrument of the League of Nations for enforcing their decrees. That, we may be sure, is what the German Wilson's scheme.

POSITION IN GERMANY

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY.

THE SOLDIERS AND BOLSHEVISM.

ORIGIN OF THE WAR.

According to a Reuter telegram from Munich, via Copenhagen, the ex-Socialist Parties of the Bavarian Diet have issued a declaration in which they again protest against the obstacles which have been violently placed in the way of the Parliamentary labours of the Lower House, and demand the summoning of a National Assembly. The declaration continues:—The non-Socialist Parties declare their readiness, when the Provisional Government of Bavaria really carries out its democratic programme, to support the Government by genuine co-operation, regardless of their different political conceptions, in which hearted opposition to any movement which might rend the country into the unspeakable misery of civil war. But this collaboration is offered on the supposition that the election to a National Assembly shall be fixed as soon as possible, and in full expectation that the Provisional Government will cease its unconstitutional attempts to carry out legislative acts.

COUNTER-REVOLUTIONARY PLOTS.

The Berlin Executive Council on Tuesday, says Reuter, issued a proclamation which denounced the "counter-revolutionary plots which have been planted in certain military circles, and resolved that, in conjunction with the Government, immediate counter-measures should be taken. The official Council declares with regard to the methods to be adopted in any political propaganda to be conducted with the reckless application of force, and issues a warning message to the Soldiers' Council requesting it to maintain strict order, and to take sharp measures against dishonest members of the Army.

THE TROOPS OPPOSED TO BOLSHEVISM.

The Kuchische Zeitung publishes an appeal which has been circulated by the troops marching through Cologne. The appeal says:—"As the people seem to doubt on what side the troops from the front stand, we assure them that we are wholly against Bolshevism, and that we have not returned home to overthrow and the summoning of a National Assembly.

According to their freedom from influence, the Wilhelmshafen Soldiers' Council yesterday sent a circulous message informing the Kiel Soldiers' Council that the Government of Kiel, that they would support the Government in the most stringent measures which might be taken against Bolshevism. The Council has also issued an appeal to the Soldiers' Councils of the Reichstag Deputy, Herr Noske, Governor of Kiel, that they should support the Government in the most stringent measures which might be taken against the Minority, whose efforts are the greatest danger to

DUBLIN STOCK EXCHANGE.

The Dublin Stock Markets continue to lack business animation, as might be supposed would be the case, with the general uncertainties and distractions of the present time and the immediate future absorbing all surplus energy and enterprise. With such conditions obtaining irregular of erratic price movements are not to be ventured at. The Funds were weaker in all directions. Banks were dull and idle. Guinness Shares continue to be absorbed, and Dublin Distillery Pref. were firmer. Burtn Steamship Pref. Soarers were bid for, but Marconis weakened more from obligation than sale pressure. Rails were firm, but the Trams were drawn blank. Parent Tyre Shares were a trifle irregular. Textiles were quiet.

LONDON STOCKS QUIET.

In the Stock Exchange yesterday there was a quiet business, and there is no sign of any pending excitement, and there is no desire to anticipate developments of importance. Apart from the unfavourable weather conditions, the holiday season is also responsible for the quietness of the market. The Bank Return, which is due to-day, is expected to show a further increase in the Note Circulation, and a decrease in the Reserve. Next week's Return will be affected by the December Treasury bill issue. Money is in good supply, and the Market is in a position to meet any demands that may arise. Gilt-edged securities are quiet, and Home Rails are dull. Foreign Bonds are neglected. Industrials are quiet, and Rubber Shares are dull and lifeless. Oil Shares are steady. Mines are quiet.
